I need your help, I need a mac Dj program that has more features like the NDRCore free version.

I need a mac Version that doesn't disseminate much my music library. I have bought the best discs, and haven't had a chance to afford Virtual DJ. Version 6 has tons of new features and a nice UI. It doesn't have as many of the menus as v7. I was going to buy v6 but now that v7 is out it's no longer an option. Anyone have suggestions? An earlier poster mentioned the yet-to-release v7. Your local DJ store should be able to at least help you narrow it down to what you're looking for. I've been using the 'lite' versions of the VDJ Pro software, and while they're lacking some of the features, the performance is phenomenal.

Thanks! This post has been edited by Ns Virtual DJ 6.0 Full By New Star.rar: 25-Jul-2017 04:32 PM. Nr. 6 posted on July 19th, 2010 at 03:56PM Hhi gdites all, I am new to the forum, and I am looking for a good mac Dj. I am currently using iPod DJ and I really like it. But I am starting to get tired of it. I have tried to "upgrade" to virtual DJ, but it just wont work. I want the following features: 1. I want to be able to view my music library in a 'list' format. I don't want the DJ program to be frozen while loading a song, i want it to be in a non-frozen state while I am doing what I am actually using it for. 2. i want the ability to drag and drop tracks onto the mixer faders. They should just snap to the faders and then update that fader with the current status of the track. 3. I want the ability to map songs to my controller. I have downloaded the pro version, and it has the potential of doing some of these things, but not all the things. And now I am trying to free up some money, and I can't afford the full version. I don't want to spend extra money, I just want a basic mac DJ that does what I need. I am not a mac user, but i read alot of reviews of the VDJ pro
