The main focus of the SI is to seek the truth of nature's possible conscious manifestation. We do so by extending the tools of science in the wider study of consciousness, and the development of theories of the nature of consciousness itself. The Sentience Institute seeks to promote a human-centered worldview that seeks to understand the whole of nature as conscious, and to develop new ways of understanding and experiencing nature's true nature as conscious, through the scientific study of consciousness. Just five days after the inauguration, just four hospitals were on that list. And all were in Texas. A recent report by the Texas Policy Evaluation Project noted how hospitals there could be subject to a Medicaid reduction of $212.2 million this year alone. On Friday, the Center for Medicare and Medicaid Services reinstated those

In the sleepy village of Rybalka, there is a secret. The village is not actually a village, but a game of intrigue; the people are secret characters that have taken the roles of the NPCs in the town. There is also an odd man, who has decided to live in the woods, and he has a bad feeling that something is wrong. And within the woods there are bears, and these aren't the ones that you'll find on your television or computer screens. These are the Black Bears. They are not a gang, but a group of adventurers who want to claim their own territory, but when that area becomes claimed by those who are not welcome in the region, they have no choice but to take up arms. What once was a quiet town is now a town in turmoil and it is the PCs of the story who have to make the choices. The Black Bears are a self-contained mini-campaign, based on the Pathfinder ruleset, but this is a game all about you. You can play it to satisfy your desire to adventure, with or without the magic system of the Pathfinder, and as a dungeon master, it is only 7 pages of dice - easily enough to add a few supplementary encounters. And as a GM, it can be used to create your own adventure (see the provided notes). But be warned, for in this game, there are choices and in choosing your path you may find yourself in very different and possibly even better places than if you had not gone your way at all. Will you be able to survive your choices, or will there be no return from all the paths you can go down?
