SugarPi - A sugar-based green reliable board for intensive projects - Toderslab ===== petank Seems like you've forgotten the 'green' part.... Does SugarPi use FPGA? If so, why? ~~~ Toderslab Yes, I used Xilinx XDK for these modules: [And also for the drivers: [Koran and the Quran One of the most challenging and contentious topics in Islam is the Qur'an and the person of the Prophet Muhammad as revealed in the Qur'an. Many Muslims argue in favor of the authenticity of the Qur'an because it is of God - and no one else created it, and whatever else it states is just so....and if it wasn't said by God then it's blasphemous. However, those who defend the validity of Muhammad say that the Qur

Forbes Avenue station Forbes Avenue is a disused underground light rail station on the Red Line of the Washington Metro system. The station was opened in 1976, and closed in 1983 when the Metro system was expanded. Forbes Avenue served the communities of Fort Washington, Silver Spring, College Park, and Landover. It was one of four stations that provided Metro access to the Prince George's County Memorial Stadium and College Park Civic Center.

History In 1955, Prince George's County obtained a $67 million federal loan for the construction of a light rail system that would link the county's northern and southern suburbs by 1962. In 1960, after a year and a half of planning and negotiations, the Board of County Commissioners approved a unified rapid transit plan of two light rail lines: the Red Line (College Park Branch) and the Blue Line (Fauntleroy Branch). The original College Park Branch was named the "Red Line" in 1961, and construction of the line began the same year. The line opened to the public in 1964. The Red Line's route ran from the University of Maryland - College Park at the intersection of Amity Street and

University Boulevard in College Park to Landover, where it joined the existing Washington Metro Yellow Line at East-West Highway. Metro's Red Line opened on May 22, 1964, and replaced the University of Maryland Transit Agency route of the College Park-Landover streetcar c9d1549cdd

What's new in Warlock 2: Three Mighty Mages:

Furever is a young cat with a very sick heart. He has a heart murmur and he isn't eating. He is barely moving. His eyes are bloodshot and he has a tooth abscess in the back of his jaw. He came to the shelter in good shape, but got sick quickly. He was born in the shelter where, you might recall, my own kitty Thumbkin also spent his first two years. So he knows the shelter. He has been acclimating himself to his furever fate. Girrrrl... see her eyes there? Now they're teary. They're in the coconut flavored lams of the shelter, too. They're holding on. This girl is heart of gold, and she's beautiful, but she's worn out right now. BOOOOM... Furever tumbles over and hangs his head. Thumbkin. My mama and papa's neighbor. He's visiting. Take a good look at him - he's got purrskill and good looks. We've been watching him for months, anxious that we'd have to give him up once the owner got back in touch, but he's doing okay. Playing a little mischief. He may have a silly name, but he's Furever to us. Still here, but mother nature is setting me free There's a storm brewing across the valley And my heart is torn apart but there's nothing I can do As the sky breaks and the wind begins to blow Oh, there's a roar out in the distance It's hands clenched around a cry And we're packing in the morning sun And we're running out of time Well you never said there'd be this much pain And it's tearing me up inside Well good riddance it's done, give it your best shot We're gonna face this rain and hail There's a rush out in the distance There's a chance you'll never see me Let go of my hand Wait and see what tomorrow brings AND SO I AM HAVING THE PURRGOYAPAWCALYPSE-THE-TE
